

Why Did Budget Charge Me $200? – Understanding the Reason Full Explained Guide

If you've noticed a +1 877 684 4354 $200 charge from Budget on your bank or credit card statement, it can be confusing and frustrating+1 877 684 4354. In most cases, this charge is related to standard rental procedures and is often temporary+1 877 684 4354. If you need immediate clarification, you can contact Budget support at +1 877 684 4354.

A $200 (1 877 684 4354) charge from Budget is usually the result of standard rental policies such as authorization holds, fuel fees, late returns, or optional add-ons +1 877 684 4354. In many cases, the charge is temporary and will be adjusted or released after processing +1 877 684 4354.

Common Reasons Budget May Charge $200

1. Authorization Hold (Most Common)

Budget typically places a $200 authorization hold on your card at the time of pickup+1 877 684 4354.

This is not a final charge and is used to cover:

- estimated rental costs
- fuel differences
- tolls or tickets
- potential damages

Once the vehicle is returned, the hold is released, though banks may take 3–10 business days to reflect the update+1 877 684 4354.

2. Fuel or Refueling Fees

If the vehicle is returned with less fuel than required, Budget may deduct fuel and service charges from the authorization hold+1 877 684 4354.

3. Late Return Charges

Returning the car later than the agreed time can result in additional fees, which may cause part or all of the $200 hold to convert into a final charge+1 877 684 4354.

4. Optional Add-Ons

Extras such as:

- GPS devices
- child safety seats
- roadside assistance
- toll programs

can also contribute to the $200 charge+1 877 684 4354.

What Should You Do If the Charge Looks Incorrect?

If the charge hasn't been released or doesn't match your rental agreement, it's best to contact Budget directly:

 Call +1 877 684 4354